WHAT IS SPORT?

Sport is a regulated form of physical activity organized as a contest between two or more participants for the purpose of determining a winner by fair and ethical means. Such contest may be in the form of a game, match, race, or other form of competitive event.

Sport is governed and sanctioned by a sport governing body (sport federation) that holds the responsibility for, notably, setting out the rules of play, either at the national level or at the world level, for awarding the organization of its championship(s), and designating the winner(s) of its championship(s).

- Its primary activity involves physical interaction between participants and/or between participants and the environment: air, water, ice, snow, ground, special surface or apparatus, with or without the use of a special conveyance (e.g., bicycle, canoe, horse, luge, parachute, sailboat, skate, ski, wheelchair).
- It requires specialized neuromuscular and cardio-vascular skills - such as speed, strength, stamina, flexibility, balance, precision and coordination - that involve large muscle groups or those which the individual has the ability to utilize, and which can be taught, learned and improved.
- It involves formal rules and procedures to ensure a safe and fair outcome for all participants.
- It requires fair, ethical and effective tactics and strategies.
- It requires a competitive format and structure, sanctioned by the recognized governing body for the sport, either at the national or world level, and open to all participants who meet the eligibility criteria outlined in the rules of the sport.
- Its competitive events require the on-site presence of officials sanctioned by the sport governing body to objectively, fairly and consistently apply the rules.
- The main form of the sport may comprise two or more competitive sub-forms called events or disciplines that share the main characteristics of the sport with variations according to various parameters: different distances, styles, apparatus, weight categories, gender, etc. An event is a specific competition (specific distance, technique, gender) that is contested for the purpose of designating a winner or champion for a specific geographic region (country, continent, world) and for a specific period of time (year, Olympiad). Men's 100m sprint, women's Giant Slalom and men's 8s in rowing are examples of events (also designated as medal events). Events that are similar in nature or share common traits may be grouped under the heading of a “discipline”. Men’s freestyle wrestling, men’s Greco-roman wrestling and women’s freestyle wrestling are three disciplines within wrestling, each comprising various weight categories that make up the sport’s medal events. Similarly, road, track and mountain bike are three cycling disciplines. Forms or adaptations of sports that have been developed specifically for athletes with a disability are considered distinct disciplines within the mainstream sport and its governing body.

Limitations for induction purposes:

Certain categories of sports or competitive activities fall outside the Hall of Fame’s parameters for induction purposes and are therefore excluded:

- Sports in which athletes directly use and control motorized propulsion as a component of competition. (e.g., racing of automobiles, motorcycles, power boats, aircraft, snow machines, etc.).
- Games of skill such as billiards, darts, board games (chess, bridge, scrabble), and electronic games.
- Sports whose governing body was not a signatory of the World Anti-Doping Agency’s (WADA) World Anti-Doping Code during the tenure or competitive career of a nominee (Not applicable in instances whereby a nominee’s achievements preceded the World Anti-Doping Code).

(The World Anti-Doping Code harmonizes anti-doping policies, rules and regulations within sport organizations and among public authorities around the world)

This Sport definition is an adaptation of Sport Canada’s Funding and Accountability Framework. The Board of Governors reserve the right to determine whether a nomination falls inside, or outside, of these parameters.
